FSCI

FORCE11 Scholarly Communications Institute

A WEEK-LONG SUMMER TRAINING PROGRAM

July 31 - August 4, 2017

UC SAN DIEGO • LA JOLLA, CA USA

If you participate in scholarly communications, this training is for you. Scientific and Scholarly Communication is in the middle of a system-wide disruption. There are new forms of publication, new standards and expectations, new ways of measuring and demonstrating success, new dangers and pitfalls.

The Force11 Scholarly Communication Institute (FSCI) helps researchers, administrators, librarians, students, and others learn how to navigate this new world. Its instructors include leading practitioners and theorists from around the world. Its courses range from the introductory to the cutting edge. It is a community-based way of learning about the latest trends and technologies and how to use them in research communication and dissemination.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND?

Anyone affected by recent changes in Scholarly Communications

Researchers • Funders • University Administrators • Publishers • Librarians • Students

29 COURSES

Visit www.force11.org/fsci/course-list for the complete course list

Scholarly Comm 101 • Data Across Domains • Managing your online Image • Understanding Metrics • The Information Rich University • Reproducibility • Crowdsourcing • Tools & Technology • Peer Review • Advocacy/Activism • &more...

www.force11.org/fsci

UC San Diego

FORCE11